

CONTENTS-VOL II

CHAPTER I.

THE RENASCENCE AND THE EMANCIPATION OF THE INTELLECT.

	PAGES
The Pre- Renaissance Emancipation Movement—Its Character and Extent—The Intellectual Life of the Middle Ages—Its Unenlightenment—Intellectual Influence of the Celtic Monks—Culture in the Middle Ages—Scholasticism—Hostility to Independent Thought—The New Culture and Tradition—The New Freedom and the Old Slavery—Growth of the Humanist Movement—The Church and Humanism—Influence on Art—The Renaissance North of the Alps—Its Many-sided Influence—A Momentous Period—Its Revolutionary Tendency—Sources of Chapter I.	1-19

CHAPTER II.

MACHIAVELLI AND MORE.

The Secularist in Politics—Rationality Applied to Politics—Machiavelli Champion of the Modern Spirit—Influence of the Spirit of the Age—Machiavelli's Narrowness—The People as a Factor in Government—Its Capacity for Public Affairs—Admiration of Popular Government—Machiavelli as Moralist—Republican Government a Failure—Where Florence has Erred—No Idea of Progress—Machiavelli and More—More the Victim of Arbitrary Government—Contemporary Kings and Courtiers—" Utopia" the Antithesis of " The Prince"—Arbitrary Methods of Kings—Radical Reforms Demanded—Utopia a Democratic State—More the Champion of Religious Liberty—An Apostle of Modern Liberty—Sources of Chapter II.. . . .	20-42
---	-------

CHAPTER III.

THE REFORMATION—LUTHER AS REVOLUTIONIST.

The Reformation a Many-sided Movement—Its Revolutionary Character —The Appeal to the Sword—Pre-Reformation Reformers—Reform within the Church —The Real Precursors of Luther—The Psychological Factor—Its Importance—The Humanist Factor—The Political
--	--